

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A hydrogen storage material of the present invention comprises a molecule including space formed with a planar sheet constituted by six-membered rings of carbon atoms. Further, in the hydrogen storage material, at least one 5 opening is formed in the sheet. Thereby, it is possible to utilize an internal space of the hydrogen storage material, and hydrogen can be efficiently stored therein.